

THIRTY FIRST YEAR

LANCASTER, KY., THURSDAY AFTERNOON, MAY 6, 1920.

NUMBER 8.

DEATH CLAIMS

Beautiful Life of Mrs. Leslie Sloan.

The community of Paint Lick was thoroughly grieved last week when it was learned that Mrs. Leslie Sloan, had passed away at Saranac Lake, N. Y., where she had gone about eighteen months ago seeking relief from that dreaded disease tuberculosis. Every medical attention known to science was used in an effort to restore her to health, but she contracted a severe case of influenza which resulted fatally a few weeks later.

She was married about three years ago to Mr. Leslie Sloan, of Lincoln county and was the youngest daughter of Mr. E. L. Woods. She was exceedingly popular and her death brought sorrow into every home of her acquaintance. In respect to her memory every business house in Paint Lick was closed for three hours last Friday afternoon, the day on which the funeral services were conducted.

Besides her husband and father she is survived by one brother, Mr. R. G. Woods and half brother, Mr. Dave Hervey and two sisters, Mrs. H. J. Patrick and Mrs. Roy Estridge. Born and reared in Paint Lick, where she received her early education, a devout member of the Presbyterian church at Manse, where the funeral services were conducted by her pastor, Rev. Ramsey, immediately following this interment took place in the Lancaster cemetery.

The remains were accompanied from Saranac Lake, by her husband, and father and Mr. R. G. Woods and Mrs. H. J. Patrick, her brother reaching her bedside before the end came.

The deepest sympathy of the grief stricken community go out to the husband and relatives in the loss of this dear young woman.

Faithful Horse Dies.

"Old Doc" the faithful old draft horse of Hudson, Hughes and Farnau, died suddenly one night last week, after ten years of efficient service for this firm. He was given a decent burial at the Old Fair Grounds, his grave being dug both wide and deep.

Musical Concert.

There will be a musical concert, at the School Auditorium Friday evening, May 14th, given by the Girls Orchestra of the Odd Fellows Home, of Lexington. All lovers of music should attend as a treat is in store for those who do. Get your reserved seat at McRoberts Drug Store.

Young "Doctor".

Dr. and Mrs. Virgil Kinnaird are receiving congratulations from their friends, occasioned by the arrival of a handsome boy to bless their happy home. The "young Doctor" arrived Tuesday at noon and has very appropriately been christened "Virgil Jr."

A Correction.

There was an error made in last week's paper in the Marksbury news. Where it said during the Bible Institute at the Fork's Church there would be only a light lunch served. This is a mistake. As is always known of this church, there will be an ample supply and everyone is invited.

Served As Judge.

Hon. J. E. Robinson was an attendant in Circuit Court yesterday and presided on the bench as Judge for quite a while when Judge Hardin was attending to some other legal matters. Mr. Robinson made a most excellent impression among the lawyers, jurymen and spectators. He is a brother of Mr. J. A. Robinson of this city.—Advocate.

Tax Books Ready.

The city tax books are ready and the city needs some money to repair some of the wornout streets of Lancaster and also to build a new street out Hamilton Avenue. Don't wait to be asked but walk up and pay your taxes which has to be done, and in this case the sooner the better, for the city at least. It.

Card Of Thanks.

We, the officers and members of the Colored Baptist Church of Lancaster, wish to thank Mr. T. C. Rankin, for the room furnished the candidates and for his kindness shown us at the baptizing, held at the river on his place, last Sunday. Signed by George Moran, Robert Overstreet, J. McBeth, Dan Bogie, Ernest Doty, Tobe Hocker and G. A. Leavell.

ODD FELLOW

Sixty Years Old And Still Enjoys Meetings

The Odessa, (Mo.) Democrat in one of its issues recently tells of a former Jessamine County man who has been a member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows for fifty years and still attends its meetings. We have in our own midst, in the person of "Uncle Gus" Dunn, one who has been an Odd Fellow for sixty years and still enjoys its weekly meetings and rarely ever misses one. "Uncle Gus" is 82 years old and joined this order in Bryantsville in 1860 and is still a member in good standing. He enlisted in the Federal Army in 1861 at Camp Dick Robinson and was assigned to Company B. of the Third Kentucky Infantry. Thomas E. Bramlett being the war Governor at that time. He served with distinction throughout the war and can entertain his friends by the hour with many experiences he had during that war.

MOTHER'S DAY

At Baptist Church.

Next Sunday is Mother's Day, one of the sweetest and most sacred days in the entire year. It is a sacred day because it brings to our minds the thought of MOTHER. Wherever mother may be, at home, at church, or in Heaven, we will think of her Sunday and sing praises to her memory. All that love her should make it possible to be at church Sunday.

We will have an appropriate flower for every one present, will sing special songs relative to mother, and the pastor will speak on the subject "A Great Woman". Come in time for Sunday School.

C. D. Strother, pastor.

CHRISTIAN

CHINAMAN

To Speak At The Methodist Church.

Rev. T. D. Lee, a native Chinaman, will speak and sing at the Methodist Church, Sunday night, beginning at 7:45. Rev. Lee is a senior at Asbury College, Wilmore, Ky. He will enter Emory University at Atlanta, Ga., this fall where he will take a special course before returning to China to work among his own people.

His address will be interesting, as his knowledge of China is first hand. He will render a solo in Chinese. Everybody welcome.

Ordination of Deacon.

Sunday afternoon May 2nd, Rev. D. F. Sebastian, pastor of Buckeye Baptist church, Rev. C. D. Strother and brothers Sam Cotton and J. F. Estes of Lancaster met with the pastor, B. J. Skaggs and his members at the Fork Church for the purpose of ordaining Brother Chas. Dunn as a deacon.

After due examination and an appropriate ceremony Bro. Dunn was publicly set apart to do the work of a deacon with prayer and the laying on of hands. Rev. C. D. Strother delivered the charge to the deacon, Rev. D. F. Sebastian delivered the charge to the church, Bro. J. F. Estes offered the ordination prayer.

A few weeks previous to this, Brothers Doolin and Sutton were ordained as deacons of this church. The pastor Rev. B. J. Skaggs is a live wire and the work of the Kingdom is progressing nicely at Marksbury.

Bourne.

The death of Mr. J. H. Bourne, which occurred at his home on the new Danville pike last Monday about noon, marked the passing of one of Garrard county's most popular and prosperous farmers. Mr. Bourne had been confined to his home for the past three months with a complication of diseases and his death was not unexpected.

Mr. Bourne was known practically by every one in the county and leaves a large connection in this and adjoining counties. He was seventy years of age and was born in this county, where he has lived all his life. His widow and five children survive; the latter being Mr. Jim Wood Bourne, of Danville, Cleve Bourne, Mrs. Jesse this county and Mrs. R. J. Ray, of Anderson and Mrs. Mason Pollard of Nicholasville. A large concourse of friends followed his remains to the Lancaster cemetery Tuesday afternoon, where short services were held at the grave, conducted by Rev. Frank Tinder, of Hubble.

GOOD FELLOWSHIP MEETING.

Lexington Board Of Commerce To Be In City Next Tuesday

Two of Lexington's live wires and clever gentlemen, Messrs Frank B. Jones and Steve Featherstone, were in Lancaster last Thursday, laying out an itinerary for the Board of Commerce and several hundred other Lexington business men, who will visit Lancaster next Tuesday. It is to be solely a good fellowship meeting with a desire to get better acquainted with the citizens of the Blue Grass section of the state. They will come in automobiles and will reach Lancaster about noon on next Tuesday. They have engaged the Ken-garian hotel for lunch that day and will remain here about two hours. A brass band accompanies the party and some fine music and speeches will entertain the crowd. We know that the people of Lancaster and vicinity will give these gentlemen a hearty welcome, and the meeting will result in much good for all, on this happy occasion.

OIL FEVER AT HIGH HEAT

Eastern Capitalists Lease Large Tract In Warren County.

Mr. T. M. Wilson, of Bowling Green has recently leased 1,000 acres of his splendid Warren County farm, to Eastern Oil capitalists, for which he received $40,000. This is said to be one of the largest deals of this character ever consummated in this part of the state. Friends of Mr. Wilson here, will be glad to learn of this little fortune coming his way and hope when the first well is "shot" that it will prove a "gusher" and the royalties from it will bring him another fortune. Oil in paying quantities have been struck in Warren county and many fortunes have been made. The farm just leased from Mr. Wilson lies just four miles from Bowling Green and is on the Nashville pike.

DEATH COMES

To Isaac F. Naylor.

Splendid Citizen Passes Away Wednesday Morning.

Stricken in the prime of a useful and well spent life, Isaac F. Naylor died at the Danville Hospital yesterday morning about two o'clock, having been operated upon last Sunday for appendicitis. Immediately after the operation it was announced that he had the barest chance of recovering, peritonitis having developed.

Mr. Naylor was in Lancaster last Saturday afternoon and was stricken while conversing with friends on the street. It was soon ascertained that his condition was serious and only an operation could hope to save his life. He was about forty one years of age and one of the most successful farmers in the county. He is survived by his wife, who before her marriage was Miss Nellie Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Brown of this county.

He is also survived by five brothers, all of whom live in the county and are among Garrard's most respected citizens.

Mr. Naylor was a member of the Christian church at Pleasant Grove and attended its services regularly. Funeral services will be conducted this afternoon at three o'clock at the Lancaster cemetery, by Rev. Holder, where the interment will take place.

Gulley Property Sells.

It is a rare thing indeed that a piece of city property in Lancaster ever fails to sell when put up at public auction. This was again proven when the property of Mr. J. D. Gulley was offered last Saturday afternoon, and sold within ten minutes, by that astute actioneer Col. A. M. Bourne, and managed by Messrs D. A. Thomas and J. R. Moorman. The brick residence and garage brought a total of $13,510, the former going to James I. Hamilton for $8,000.00 and the latter to Walker Brothers for $5,510.

We regret to announce that Mr. and Mrs. Gulley will leave Lancaster for Fayette county where they have purchased a beautiful home on the Paris pike.

THE FISCAL COURT SHOULD ACT.

A Way To Get More Good Roads In Garrard County.

A rare opportunity is now presented to the Fiscal Court of Garrard County by which more good roads can be secured for the County without delay. Through the efforts of the County Judge and other enterprising citizens of the county, State aid to the amount of some $100,000, will be available on the permanent Highway through the county, leaving about $90,000 of the bonds voted for good roads which can be used equally on the five other main turnpikes leading into the County Seat or approximately $18,000 for each of these main roads, which will put them all in good condition and increase the value of every farm along the way by several times the amount expended and place Garrard County in the front rank of counties in regard to good roads. In other words use the entire bond issue as voted by a majority of five to one, one the permanent highway and use the State aid on the other main roads leading into the County seat and all the citizens of the County wherever they may live will be benefited.

We feel sure that when this is considered by the Court that it will be quick to take advantage of this great opportunity to increase the good road mileage of the County and make a better market for all the farmers of the county living to the North, South, East or West of the County Seat. Tax Payer.

SWINEBROAD

Reports a Splendid Sale In Madison County.

On May 4th, he sold for M. A. Collins 94.77 acres of unimproved land about a mile from Richmond at an average of $366.33 per acre. The farm was subdivided and sold in separate tracts and some of the land sold for $650. per acre.

S. G. Hisle purchased 7 tracts at an average of $480.00 per acre.

B. Current bought 7 tracts at an average of $458.00 per acre and Mr. Shearer 2 tracts at $185.00 per acre.

Mr. Collins was well pleased with the price and the way the sale was conducted. Swinebroad never has any by-bids at his sales and always advertises that way and the land buyers attend his sales knowing they will get a square deal and no "fake" sales will be reported.

Swinebroad tells us he has several more sales booked, watch for his advertisements.

SCHOOL ELECTION Brings out Many Voters

Nothing can create more interest or excitement at times than the ordinary election of a trustee for a school. We had it here last Saturday in the election of two trustees for the Lancaster Graded and High School. Messrs Henley Bastin and J. E. Dickerson who have served the board for several years, withdrew from the race early in the action and left only two candidates Messrs W. S. Carrier and Phil Brown, these gentlemen receiving the largest vote ever polled in such an election in many years. The former received 380 votes and the latter 350 votes. Many women voted.

Another Good Farm Sells.

Mr. W. M. Bogie sold his farm last week, known as the old Rout farm, near Fork Church, on the Lexington pike, to Messrs Morris and Emmet Long of this county. This is one of the best farms in that splendid neighborhood and contains 118 acres. The price paid was $350 an acre. Mr. Bogie bought it about five years ago for $140.00. He gives possession of the place next January and hopes in the meantime to secure a home in Lancaster, where he and his splendid family will be given a hearty welcome.

SALVATION ARMY.

Noted People Who Are Indorsing Its Work.

The Salvation Army now asking for funds to carry on its home service work in this country is indorsed by noted men of all creeds and parties including: President Woodrow Wilson, Vice President Thomas Marshall, Former President Taft, the late President Theodore Roosevelt, Governor Morrow, Dr. E. L. Powell, pastor of the First Christian Church of Louisville, Dr. W. A. Ganfield, President of Center College, Danville, and many others. Some of the letters follow:

"I sincerely wish Godspeed to any organization which, like the Salvation Army, has as its main object the betterment of humanity and the making of bad citizens into good ones."—President Woodrow Wilson.

"I am for The Salvation Army. The problem of this age is to believe that men are mutually helpful to each other and that men have mutual interest in each other. Toward the total solution of it all religious organizations in America will contribute, but I know of no organization which will stand back of men and humankind better than The Salvation Army."—Thomas R. Marshall, Vice President of the United States.

"I believe that your experience in dealing with the slums of great cities and your practical methods of charity are of the widest usefulness."—Former President William H. Taft.

"At last it has won its way to recognition, and there are few serious thinkers now-a-days who do not recognize in The Salvation Army an invaluable social asset—a force for good which works effectively in those dark regions where, save for this force, only evil is powerful."—The Late President Theodore Roosevelt.

If you have not given to this great work and wish to do so, kindly leave check made payable to "The Salvation Army" or cash contribution with any bank in Garrard County and say that it is for the Salvation Army and the money will be promptly acknowledged and you will be sure that you have helped a good cause.

GOVERNOR COX

Will Get Kentucky's Instructed Vote At The San Francisco National Convention.

Camden National Committeeman.

Gov. James M. Cox of Ohio will poll at least twenty-one of the twenty-six votes from Kentucky at the San Francisco convention next month. The Democratic State Convention this week instructed the eight delegates from the State-at-large with half a vote each to cast their ballots for the Ohioan as long as his name shall be before the convention. Eight district conventions Tuesday also instructed for him.

John T. Griffith, of Owensboro, one of the two Second District uninstructed delegates, also has announced that he will vote for the Ohioan.

The unit rule, which would have bound all delegates from the Second, Third and Fifth Districts to vote for Governor Cox, was not adopted by the convention, but it is possible that the delegation in caucus at San Francisco before the convention will adopt such a rule.

The convention was in an uproar in the closing hours during the fight on former United States Johnson N. Camden of Versailles, as candidate for National Committeeman. He defeated Marion E. Taylor of Louisville, his opponent, by a vote of 1,634 to 968.

The threatened fight against Judge Charles A. Hardin of Harrodsburg did not materialize and the forces of Senator A. O. Stanley succeeded in reelecting him as chairman of the two committees.

Women In Delegation.

On the delegation from the State-at-large were elected Senators Stanley and Beckham, Congressman Alben W. Barkley of Paducah and Ben Johnson of Bardonia; Desha Breckinridge, Lexington editor; Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart of Morehead, Miss Laura Clay of Richmond and Mrs. Nora Layne of Fort Thomas. This is the first time that women have been sent from Kentucky to a National Convention. Mrs. Stewart is the founder of the "Moonlight" schools, Miss Clay is a pioneer woman suffragist and Mrs. Layne is prominent in the Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs, and was Mrs. Stewart's secretary during the illiteracy campaign.

LOVING HEARTS

By RALPH HAMILTON.

(Copyright, 1916, Western Newspaper Union.)
Martin Gale was running away from home. He was over sixty, hair white as the driven snow, slightly stooped, looked his age, but his eye was bright and his step elastic.

"I've done it according to the story books!" soliloquized the aged truant. "Out of the back window, a slide down the kitchen roof and everybody in the house asleep. I hope the folks don't worry. It was all I could do to help out a bad situation."

Old Martin had begun with a whimsical chuckle, but ended up serious and thoughtful. He was facing the world all alone without a penny; he had no thought of turning back. There were three persons whom he loved devotedly—his daughter, Etta, his son-in-law, Allan Porter, and their little four-year-old child, sunny-faced, golden-haired Mina. He choked up when he called up a picture of the latter climbing to his knee and caressing fondly his wrinkled face.

Hard times had come to the Porters. The husband and father had fallen ill, had lost his position and had been obliged to depend upon spasmodic inferior employment. There were times when there was little in the larder and nothing in the household purse. Long since old Martin had learned that he was not wanted in the active fields of labor. He had pottered about the rented home and had raised a few vegetables. In winter had picked up stray dollars shoveling snow and helping the ice harvesters on the river, but had not the strength to keep up such arduous tasks regularly.

"I'm the oldest and the biggest to feed and keep warm," he reasoned, "and a burden on them. I'm welcome and all that, but I am taking what the others can't spare."

He had left behind him a note telling of his resolve, bidding Etta and her husband have no anxiety for him, for he was sure that in some bustling place than Marville he would be sure to find some odd job fitted to his ability. All the time he had a definite point in view. He had been brought up in a place called Brocton, but had left it twenty years previous. He was by this time doubtless forgotten by many old-time acquaintances. Still, the longing to get back to familiar scenes, the hope that he might meet some helpful friend of his earlier years, lured him to the home of his childhood just as does the circus or some other fascinating objective point the juvenile runaway and rover.

Martin had saved up even pennies to get enough to take him towards Brocton. As it was he found himself quite an amount short of the necessary funds to reach his destination. He took a train and when his money gave out had to leave it with some twenty-five miles yet to accomplish.

Sturdily old Martin started out to tramp over the last stretch of his journey. Asking for a drink of water at a farm house, the woman who supplied that need noticed his age and weariness and invited him to a homely, but strengthening meal.

It was dusk when he entered the edge of the home town he had not seen for twenty years. He was footsore, unsteady of gait, faint and wavering. There was a pretentious mansion surrounded by beautiful grounds and he stepped over the hedge and started to reach an ornamental bench to rest his weary limbs when exhausted nature gave way and the old man fell prostrate in a dead swoon.

Light, warmth and two genial young faces bending over him as he lay on a couch in a luxuriously furnished apartment greeted his dazed senses. The twain solicitedly regarding him seemed to be brother and sister.

"You are with friends," spoke the young man. "Don't excite or disturb yourself until you are completely rested."

"But where am I?" inquired Martin, sitting up. "It was only a little weak spell."

"We found you on the lawn," said his host. "There was a letter in your pocket bearing the name 'Martin Gale.'"

"I am he."

"Did you ever know that person?" inquired the young lady, indicating an oil portrait on the wall.

"Why! this must be the old Ransom place, and that is John Ransom. Is he living yet? Is he here?"

"No, my father has been dead many years," replied the young man. "You did him an act of kindness once that neither he nor ourselves ever forgot. You changed the entire current of his life. Do you recall it?"

"Why, in those old days Mr. Ransom was given a little to drink," responded Gale half evasively, "and I—I brought him home one cold winter night."

"Carried him two miles on your back, you mean, found by you, lying stupefied in a snow bank where he would have perished but for your timely aid. And, true man that you were, you concealed the fact from the public. When father recovered his right mind and reformed you had moved away from Brocton. He sought vainly to trace you. Half a hundred times he told us of you. Just before he died he urged me to locate you and see that you never suffered for means while Ransom had a dollar."

Martin Gale's runaway experience covered just three days. Its end found the grateful and loyal Blanche and Wilton Ransom with him at Mayville, renouncing permanently the fortunes of the little family who so deserved the generous services bestowed.

Insect Mother's Sacrifice.

The last act in the life of the female cochineal insect is to lay a large number of eggs upon which her dead body rests, protecting them from the burning rays of the sun until the little ones emerge.

Why I Love America.

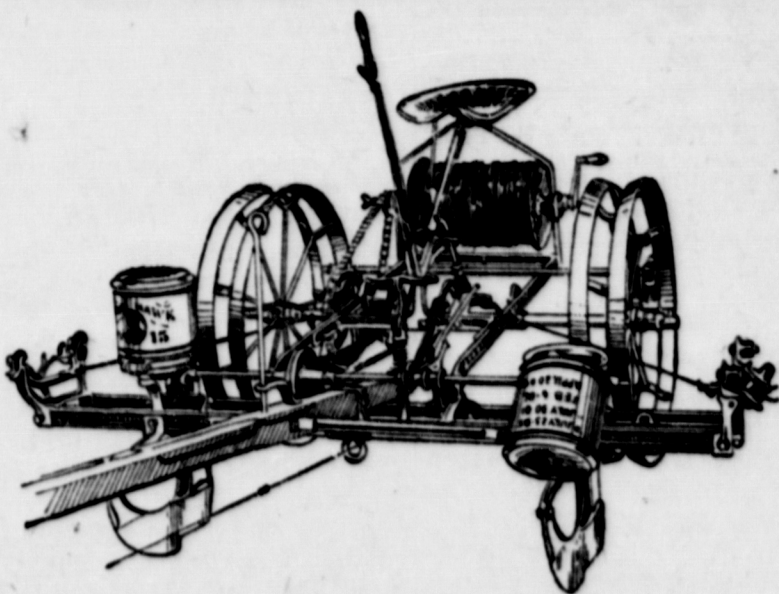

Now ask me why I love America! Such homes as mine are to be found all the country over and they are what make it a great country. Every boy scout has these loved ones that he prizes above all others. For these we would gladly give our lives, for all boy scouts are brave and unselfish. Being unselfish we are not only interested in the happiness of our loved ones, but we are determined to see that every other family is just as happy as our own.—Lieut. Belvin W. Maynard in Boys' Life.

Nutmeg Once a Perfume.

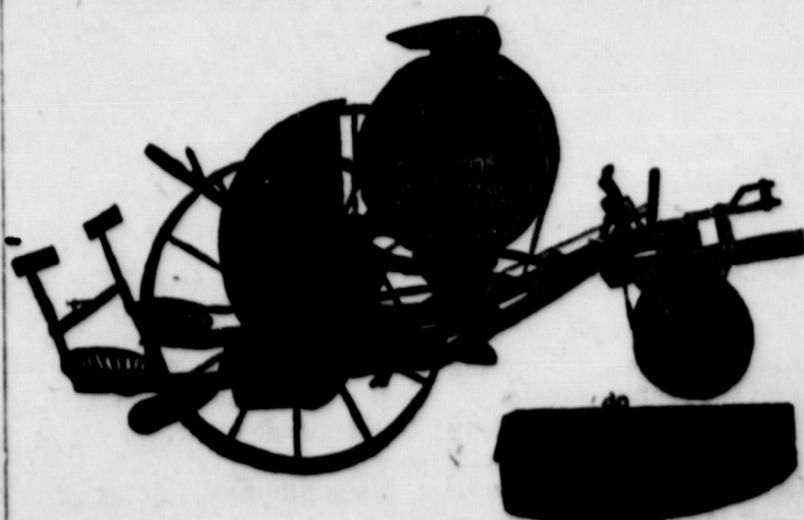

In olden times the ladies in England used nutmegs as a perfume. The nutmegs were set in silver and ornamented with pearl and precious stones, and hung from a lady's belt like a modern scent-bottle.

Dar ain't no other hotel 'nected with it. I jes picked de word 'Annex' 'cause it sounds high-toned like."—Washington Herald.

FROM FRYING PAN TO FIRE

A story goes that once upon a time a live fish was placed in a frying pan. In its agony it gave one mighty flop and landed in the hotter coals of the fire.

We fear the story of the fable is being enacted in real life today.

There is a growing unrest among young men on the farms—an unrest which constitutes a distinct peril to the nation.

Stories of abnormally high wages paid for even unskilled labor in the cities have fired the farm hand with that greatest of all American curses—a desire to get rich quick.

In imagination he sees the money rolling in, but there his imagination stops. He never thinks of it pouring out again.

And in the big cities, despite the high wages paid, there is quite as much pouring as rolling.

Just why bright eyed, keen minded and energetic young men of the country should prefer the exasperating perplexities of the city to the peaceful certainties of the country is difficult to conceive.

From infancy they have been trained in the hard headed school of experience which has enabled their fathers to achieve success in an era when the hand of fate was against every farmer—when there was no adequate recompense for their labors—when the star of hope was obscured by the low prices of their products.

Yet all of this splendid training seems to be without avail. They want to leave the farms.

Fathers have pleaded. Mothers and sisters and sweethearts have shed bitter tears. But the unrest is there—it will not sleep.

True, the city newspapers are filled with enticingly worded advertisements calling for help, but when sifted down they are more often found to be jobs that the city man does not want. The farmer lad is asked to come in and take the crumbs that remain.

It is an unfortunate condition which faces the country, and one which must be met.

If the deplorable depopulation of the farms continues there can be but one result. The farmer will live in peace and plenty, because he can always raise sufficient for the needs of himself and his family. But everywhere the cities will cry for food when there is no food to be had. And the young man who leaves the farm will be among those who experience the joys of a gay life and an empty stomach.

The greatest crown of glory of the world war was placed by Marshal Foch upon the brow of a farmer boy from the mountains of Tennessee. He is the hero of heroes of the war or all wars.

The farm boy of today has an opportunity of performing for his country an even greater service than that which made Alvin York's name known wherever civilization exists.

By remaining upon the farm, where life is clean and opportunities are never lacking, he can aid in saving millions of helpless women and children from the pangs of hunger and the depths of despair.

For without the products of the farm even life itself can not be sustained.

THE POT AND

THE KETTLE.

There are but few cities or towns in this country but what have their pots and their kettles—men whose principal form of diversion consists of villifying each other. But it is poor policy.

A mind that can see nothing good in others has a loose screw of its own. Its cogs are not well oiled—its working parts are not properly adjusted.

In all people there is much that is bad, but there is always something that is good. We see the imperfections and magnify them by repetition. The goodness we gloss over and forget.

The pot is black, and so is the kettle, and it ill becomes either to traduce the other. The public is not greatly interested in the private opinion of one person regarding another, and it tires of hearing them shouted from the housetops or roared from the gutters.

If the pot and the kettle would clean their own bottoms they would have little occasion for throwing stones at each other.

"ALWAYS SELLS"

Is Right—Swinebroad Never Disappoints—

THE SALE SATURDAY WAS A GREAT SUCCESS.

The sale of the property of Mr. Joshua B. Adams property which lies practically, though not quite, in the city limits of Danville, was conducted last Saturday afternoon by Swinebroad, who "always sells" and the sale, as is his usual custom, was a great big success. Messrs Dever and Moss, the local representatives, did a big part in making the sale the success that it proved to be. Boliver Bond, auctioneer supreme, was at his best on the block Saturday. The total sale amounted to $62,046.70 and the average per acre for the 141 acres was $439.88. The land was purchased by the following:

83.34 acres to George White of Versailles, for $16,000.
16.44 acres at $407.50; 20.51 acres at $400; 35.53 acres at $350 went to Mr. G. A. McRoberts. This adjoins Mr. McRoberts present farm and will give him an outlet to the Lancaster pike, making two outlets, the East Main street one and the above.
7.80 acres at $470; 8.40 acres at $590 went to J. D. Whitehouse.
19.03 acres at $530 went to Tilford Alexander.—Danville Advocate.

That Busy Stork.

Elizabeth is a clever, observing little girl. A few months ago a baby brother came into the family and it was duly explained to her that the stork brought it. On her birthday, when she was admitted to the room where her gifts were displayed, she spied a large doll sitting on a little chair. She regarded it attentively for a moment, then remarked as if to herself: "If that stork hasn't been here again!"

Simple Explanation.

Why is it that fishes make no disturbance when swimming through the water, although there is a rushing noise when a stone is flung in? This is explained by the fact that, in the latter case, it is the filling of the cavity that is made, rather than the mere impact, which causes the noise, whereas the body of the fish is so shaped that when it moves through the water it leaves no such cavity behind it and therefore there is no disturbance.

How Fish Eat.

When a codfish eats it takes an oyster in its mouth, cracks the shell, digests the meat, and ejects the shell. Crabs crack the shells of their smaller neighbors and suck out their meat. This accounts for the mounds of shells which are found beneath the waves. And, as further illustrating the constant destruction going on in the oceans' depth, it is said that if a ship sinks at sea it will be eaten by the fish with the exception of its metal portions.

Superstition Concerning Diamond.

The losing of a diamond is considered, apart from its material value, an omen of mishap. To be efficacious as a talisman the diamond should be given freely, and "never sold, never lent, never coveted, and never taken by fraud or force."

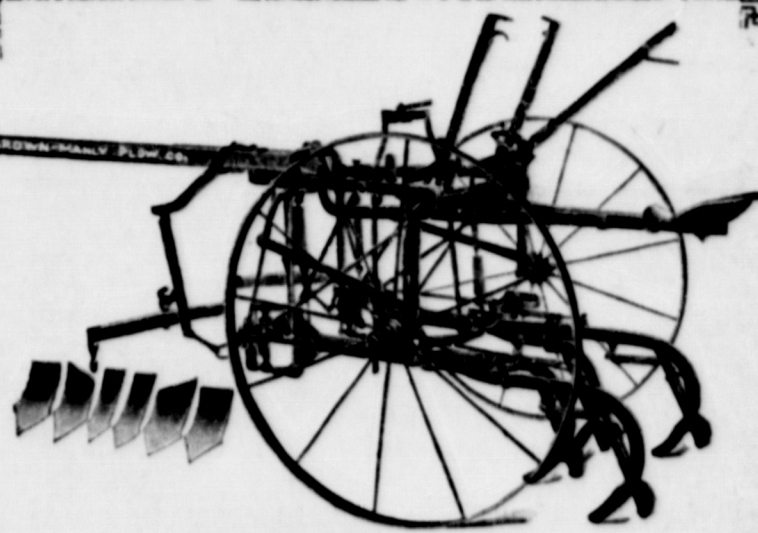

Pin and Candle Auction.

The many centuries old custom of selling "Poor Folk's Candles" every fifth year has again been observed at Old Boilingbroke, where Henry IV. was born in 1393. The biddings cease when a pin inserted in a burning candle falls. The field, three acres, was let for £12 10s. For about twenty years it has not made more than £5.—London Daily Mail.

D. Cochran, Earl Thompson, Roscoe Thompson and Edd Williams all of Danville.

Cradle roll day at the Christian church was quite a success. The decorations were in pink and white flowers and ferns. Mrs. L. G. Davidson and the Cradle roll Superintendent conducted the exercises. Mrs. Ross Bastin furnished the music. The cradle used belonged to Mrs. Jesse Sanders and was one-half century old. Mrs. Sanders and children having been rocked in the cradle. Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Joseph's baby, Doris Rose, was in the cradle. Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Miller's baby, Anna Wages, was standing holding the cradle, while Georgetta Walker entertained the babies, little Willie Allene Bastin and Myrtle Acton Tucker rocked the cradle. Mary Lee Dunn gave a reading "Babies Short and Babies Long". The children repeated the verse "Suffer Little Children to come unto Me". Then a prayer by the children for the babies, followed by a song, "Little By-Lo Song" by the children which closed the program. Many mothers and babies were present and all went away thinking the services beautiful and delightful, hoping to come to Cradle roll day next year. Each baby received a beautiful souvenir.

Mrs. Thompson Pleasantly Surprised.

The home of Mrs. J. J. Thompson of Preachersville, was the scene of a very happy occasion on Sunday last, which was the good lady's 65th birthday, also the birthday of her grandson-in-law, Mr. J. T. Riggsby. When Mrs. Thompson returned from church she found her table laden with a bountiful dinner, which her children had prepared at their homes and taken in during her absence. It was indeed a delightful surprise and thoroughly appreciated by Mrs. Thompson, who has eight living children, twelve grand-children and three great-grandchildren. All who partook of the delectable repast left wishing the splendid woman many more such birthdays. The following relatives and friends were present: Mr. Frank Thompson and children, Mr. and Mrs. Phil Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Prewitt Thompson and daughter, Mr. Charles M. Thompson, Mrs. Lettie Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Seph Morgan and little daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Hayden Leavell, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Riggsby and children, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Holtzclaw, Mr. W. C. Elam, Eugene Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jordan, Misses Mary and Laverne Williams, Emma J. Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. S. B. McKenzie and children, and Mr. C. L. Gover, of Stanford. Interior Journal.

W. C. T. U. will meet Saturday at 2:30 at Mrs. J. B. Kinnaird's.

NOTICE—Rev. J. W. Peterson will give a lecture in the Court House here Tuesday night, May 18th, on the World War in Prophecy. Watch this paper next week for his advertisement giving some out lines of the lecture.

Liberal Donation.

The Forks of Dix River Sunday school have contributed $29.85 to the Armenian and Syrian Relief fund and have turned the same over to chairman, A. D. Joseph. This is a very liberal donation and we doubt if any other Sunday School in the county has done as well.

A Failure in Life.

A sad story reaches us from South-west London. It appears that a girl of twenty attempted suicide because she realized she was too old to write either a popular novel or a book of poems.—From Punch London.

"Tempus Fugit."

The teacher gave Margaret some yarn and cardboard, and after showing her how to work a design, told her to finish it at home. When she came to school the next day with the half-finished work, the teacher asked her why she had not finished it; if she had run out of yarn. "Oh, no," answered Margaret; "I just run'd out of time."

The Tricolor.
This really owes its origin to Mary Queen of Scots. It was she who, according to tradition, gave the tricolor device to Paris—the white to represent the house of her royal husband, the dauphin, the blue for Scotland, and the red for the red-coated Swiss of the royal bodyguard. The Revolutionists in 1789 adopted Mary's colors for their own.

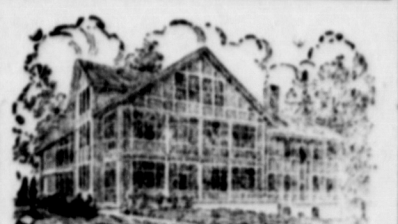

Things Mend.
Every line of history inspires a confidence that we shall not go far wrong; that things mend. That is the moral of all we learn, that it warrants Hope, the prolific mother of reforms. Our part is plainly not to throw ourselves across the track, to block improvement and sit till we are stone, but to watch the uprise of successive mornings and to conspire with the new works of new days.—Emerson

Useful Kerosene.
Housewives, with but few exceptions, do not properly value kerosene. As a lubricant a drop or two will set things going which refused to go before. As a cleanser it can often be used with great advantage in place of soap and water. Floors can be more quickly and more thoroughly cleaned with a well-oiled mop than with soap and water, leaving a bright, shining surface.

Standard English Pound.
The original English pound was derived from the weight of 7,680 grains of wheat taken from the middle of the ears and well dried. This remained the standard from the time of William the Conqueror to the time of Henry VIII, in whose reign the avoirdupois pound of 7,000 grains came into use. This was established as the standard pound during the reign of Queen Elizabeth and has been continued to the present day.

Cornish Tin Miners.
The men who work in the Cornish tin mines are a class by themselves, and all their differences are adjusted by the stannary courts, as they are called from the Latin word stannum. These curious courts have existed in their present form since the middle of the thirteenth century, and, in a simpler form, much earlier; and the miners claim to be free from all other jurisdiction, "except in matters affecting the land, life or limb."

Icelandic Trawling Perils.
Compared with the perils of Icelandic trawling, North sea boats are always in a haven. From October to March blizzards of snow and sleet sweep the Icelandic regions, and from December to the end of January there is only an hour or two of daylight. Icelandic vessels are much larger than North sea trawlers, and so marked is the difference between the two operations that an Icelandic skipper rarely works the North sea, and vice versa.

Farm Bureau

Is A Sound And Conservative Organization Along Right Lines.

(Bardstown, Ky., Standard.)

The Farm Bureau is thoroughly sound in principle and is being organized along conservative lines for right purposes. An organization of this character is calculated to live long and accomplish great good. The great farming population of this country has never been organized sufficiently to protect their just rights and many efforts with this end in view have failed because the founders of such organizations have undertaken too many things.

The Farm Bureau is genuinely American and has no room for red radicalism, force or anarchy. It matters not about a man's nationality just so he is for America and the United States first. The organization is strictly non-partisan and welcomes every unselfish and patriotic man and woman, sincerely interested in agriculture, to join its ranks, and help the farmers of the country in their righteous fight for justice and a square deal.

The purposes of the Farm Bureau are to improve farming conditions and to bring prosperity and more at tractive and convenient living to rural communities; to encourage industry and thrift; to weed out profiteering; to maintain the present general level of prices for farm products by judicious marketing and through community selling; to prohibit by just and fair laws the buying and hoarding of products for unjust gain and profiteering, and where it is necessary to protect against profiteering, to engage in community buying, but in no event to attempt to finance or operate a store or other business; to cooperate with other organizations similarly striving towards the ends of justice and a square deal for all worthy people, and with these noble objects in view the Farm Bureau cannot fail to accomplish great good and will summon to its aid all kindred interests and weld them into a powerful organization against the wrongdoer and for the perfect success of a righteous cause.

Shape of Shells.

"Modern long-range shells are cigar-shaped. They taper both at the front and at the rear. This tapering of the rear end is called 'boat-tailing.' You have noticed that racing automobiles have torpedo-shaped sterns. A square-tailed shell or automobile is actually held back at high speeds because of the vacuum created behind it by the velocity of its movement. Tapering the tail lends the air gently and easily into the hole that the shell or the racing car bores in the atmosphere and thus lessens vacuum's impeding grip on the flying object."—Everybody's Magazine.

Why the Cleveland Six is Multiplying its Friends

The Cleveland Six is making new friends every day, thousands of them every month, because it brings them so much more than they had even dared to expect,—so much more of the pleasure of driving, and the ease of driving and of the comfort of riding.

The motor of the Cleveland Six—designed by the Cleveland company's own engineers, tested in road work and engineering shops for three years before being offered to the public, and now built in the company's own great factory—is something new to countless thousands of motorists who prefer the light six type of car.

They have never driven behind just such a motor as this. The wonders of its pick-up and flexibility are exceptional and the brakes sure. Low underslung spring construction and soft restful cushions give the Cleveland unusual qualities of comfort.

Since first sent out on its journey into the big world of motordom, last July, the Cleveland Six has made friends, and multiplied them. Thousands of owners know what a good car it is and they tell their friends.

Ye Editor.

There are people who think anyone can be an editor. All an editor has to do is to sit at his desk six days in the week, four weeks of the months, and twelve months of the year and "edit" such stuff as this:

"Mrs. Jones of Lost Creek let a can opener slip last week and cut herself in the pantry."

"A mischievous lad of Matherton threw a stone and struck a companion in the alley last Tuesday."

"John Doe climbed on the roof of his house last week looking for a leak, and fell, striking himself on the back porch."

"While Harold Green was escorting Miss Violet Wise home from a church social Saturday night a savage dog attacked them and bit Mr. Green on the public square."

"Isaac Trimmer was playing with a cat Friday, when it scratched him on the veranda."

"Mr. White, while harnessing a bronco last Saturday, was kicked just south of the corner."—The Three Partners.

Pacific Ocean Once South Sea.

The South sea is the name originally given and sometimes still applied to the Pacific ocean. In 1583 Balboa crossed the isthmus and arrived on September 29 at a mountain, from the summit of which, looking south, he beheld the expanse of the ocean stretching out before him, while the northern part was closed from view. He named it, therefore, the South sea.

Tree Furnished Timber for Church.

A unique church has recently been completed in Santa Rosa, Cal. Every piece of timber in it, except the floor, was cut from one tree—a giant redwood, 18 feet in diameter. The tree, which produced 78,000 feet of timber, grew on a high mountain range near Greenville, 15 miles from the Pacific ocean, and when cut was found to be about eight hundred years old.

Mr. Charles Duncan and wife and Mrs. Landram Burdette were in Lexington Monday to see their sister, Mrs. William Vanderpool who is ill.

Mr. Russell Vanderpool and sister, Mrs. O. A. Montgomery and two children are with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Vanderpool at Kokoma, Ind., for a weeks stay.

On the 26th Mr. B. A. Duncan of Lock 8, celebrated his 60th birthday at the home of his son Jesse, near Buena Vista, there were about 30 present and all enjoyed the day to the utmost, wishing him many happy returns of the day.

Rev D. F. Sebastian of Georgetown filled his appointment here Sunday morning and evening. At the morning service the church held a business session and Rev. Sebastian offered his resignation as pastor of the church to take effect the 1st of June. The resignation was accepted. Rev. Sebastian has been pastor here three years, his labors have been very successful, he has many friends here and while the church very reluctantly gives him up we wish for him much success in his new field of labor and trust God will bless his work wherever he may go.

The Sunflower in Russia. Sunflower cultivation has become an industry in southern Russia, where the people have found the seeds a substitute for olives in making oil. The Russian eats the kernel. An acre of sunflowers yields about 60 bushels of seeds, and these in turn yield more than 50 gallons of oil.

Meditations Of A Man.

The book of life is never so bright but that a man may turn over a new leaf, with advantage to others as well as to himself.

It is so with me. I have reformed my ways with regard to my wife, and she is a happier and more contented woman today—and her happiness makes our home brighter for me.

But I have still my children to consider, for in my determination to chase the shadows from the life of my wife I neglected to include them. It seems that always I forget something. But it is never too late to add another link in the chain of reformation.

I will forge it today. I am responsible for the presence of my children in this world. Their tomorrow is my legitimate care of today, and by my acts they will judge me.

Do I remember that in their infancy they have neither thought nor care of the future—that to them it is a void, the meaning of which has not penetrated their infantile brains?

Do I remember that even the slightest of impressions are often indelibly stamped upon their budding memories, to accompany them through life and into the shadows beyond?

Do I remember that many of those impressions must necessarily be formed from the manner of my actions in their presence, and of the treatment I accord to them?

Do I remember that as they become older their conceptions of right and wrong will be gauged mainly by the teachings they receive in their own home?

Do I remember that while their destinies must be carried out by their own hands, yet their future will be principally determined by the paths into which I lead them today?

Do I make of myself a beacon light which they may follow in confidence and in the knowledge that it will lead them through the intricate perils of youth and into the safe harbor of maturity?

Am I to them at all times and in all things the kind and loving parent whom little children delight to fondle and to caress?

Do I give to them such tender thought and care that they may see and drink in always the sunshine of their home?

Is my daily treatment of them such that they long each night for the hour when daddy comes home again?

And as the years lead them slowly from infancy to youth and from youth to maturity shall I be to them a companion, a comrade, a loyal friend as well as a parent?

Alas! My shortcomings have been many and great. Always I have forgotten—and to forget is to neglect.

The burden of their care has fallen principally upon the frail shoulders of my wife—that loving companion whose burdens I should also bear, as well as theirs.

BUT I WILL MAKE AMENDS!

I will remember all of these things and I will do all of these things, for as I am to them today so will they be to their children in their own time—for heredity is strong and may not easily be cast aside.

And when their own heads have become silvered by the lapse of time, and I have passed on to my reward, I would that they might some day think back over the years that have flown and write of me that epitaph which is more lasting than granite, more precious than gold:

"My father was a good man."

Where Fastidious People Like To Trade.

OLD COLORED WOMAN

Relates Pleasant Reminiscences of Hap- penings In Days of Slavery.

The evangelistic revival has been in progress for the past few weeks among the colored population and which was followed by the immersion in Dix river of the large number of converts last Sunday, brought to town for the services, colored people from beyond Boone's Creek and back of Ball Hills, in any kind of conveyance that had wheels. One worshiper who came in from the upland farm, is an aged negress, who for her alert mind, her energy and capacity and her varied experiences, is an interesting character.

The ex-slave is passing, and the memories of the few remaining ones are interesting as registering picturesque phases of plantation life in Kentucky. "Law don't nobody know what good times is now" says aunt Fain, "the white folks and the black folks aint happy and singing lak' they use to be." "Down on my master's farm of nights, after the white folks all had gone to bed up at the big house, we'd let the word around there was gwine be a dance at one of de cabins. Pretty soon all de niggers would ooze around bringing the fiddles, and we'd hang sumpin up at the winder and shut the door tight, so's the lights wouldn't show and then they'd turn a big iron kettle up side down and prop it up a little between the cabin and the big house, so it would ketch the sound of the music and dancing and the white folks wouldn't know it, and we'd leave one or two on the outside to watch. Then the fun would begin. That fiddle would certainly talk and the fiddler would call out the changes, "swing corners," Ladies to de right" and so on. Maybe the noise was at de highest one of em on de outside watching would poke his head in and say, "Git away quick, de boss is coming," and Lawd sich a schampering. De niggers would blow out de lights and they'd all skip off, and dem dat lived in de cabin would jump in de bed and by de time de boss would reach de door, they'd be snoring."

Aunt Fain upon receiving her freedom went to Lexington, being quite a young woman. It is her boast that she worked for the "most prominentest" families in that city. From the viewpoint of a house maid, she has picturesque memories of some of the persons who figured in that stately society of Lexington just succeeding the war. The famous Southern belle and poetess, Rosa Vertner Jeffreys she is especially admired as a mistress. "She was so beautiful," says aunt Fain, "and she had such beautiful airs." When she dressed for callers, she wore a white veil like thing about her head and she looked like an angel in a cloud."

Other employer's were the Gratz family—a branch of that Philadelphia Jewish family of which a member, Rebecca Gratz, was the "original" for Scott's heroine in Ivanhoe. "Yes honey I was house girl there, and I waited on the table. "Every Christmas they had for the center of the table a whole pig roasted and dressed with holly and ribbons, and they laid him in an old dish that had been in the family so long that it looked like would crumble to pieces. And they were so afraid the dish would crack, they would set it on a silver dish, so as not to bear the weight and then the pig was laid on it right slow and easy and then right careful like, I took it to the table."

What Is The Matter With That Child?

When children grow pale and listless their blood may be weak

PEPTO-MANGAN MAKES RED BLOOD

Sold by druggists in liquid and tablet form—both same in medicinal quality

When your child loses color, acts and talks without spirit, and does not play like other children, act quickly. If the condition is not a deep-seated disease but merely due to poor blood, give Pepto-Mangan. Gude's Pepto-Mangan is just the tonic for pale, thin children whose blood needs rebuilding. It is a pleasant-tasting, simple combination of exactly the ingredients that increase and enrich the blood.

Beneficial results show almost at once in brighter eyes, blooming cheeks, a sprightly step, and the whole system made more vigorous. Pepto-Mangan is obtained in liquid or tablet form, whichever proves most convenient. Both forms possess identical medicinal qualities.

There is but one genuine Pepto-Mangan and that is "Gude's". Ask your druggists for "Gude's" and look for the name "Gude's" on the package. If it is not there, it is not Pepto-Mangan.—Advertisement.

IT PAYS To Operate Your Car With Care.

"To get the maximum enjoyment and comfort from your car you must be thoughtful of it," says Paint Lick Garage, Paint Lick, Ky. dealer in Chevrolet passenger and commercial cars.

"Do not race the motor unnecessarily.

"Be warned by every abnormal noise. If it is a squeak, locate it and lubricate the part. If caused by loose parts, locate them and tighten the bolts.

"Don't tinker. Half the ability to make an adjustment or repair is the ability to discover its necessity. "If all adjustments are carefully made when needed and every bearing and working part is lubricated, smooth operation will be continuous with a minimum of attention.

"By neglecting details you may save time at the start, but you will make up for it in the long run.

"Do not maintain too high a speed in driving. The time saved will not offset the liability of accidents, nor the extra wear to which the car is subjected. In the end the time saved this way is a loss in dollars and cents.

"You will find a normal rate of travel will conserve the life of your car and give you the utmost return in economical service.

"It is not the number of miles covered in a given time that counts most, but the number of miles of travel that can be obtained at the least cost for fuel, oil, tires and adjustments."

FIGHTS BONUS

The U. S. Chamber Of Commerce, the Most Powerful Organization of Business Interests In The Country,

OPPOSES THE SOLDIER BONUS.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—The Chamber of Commerce of the United States, at the closing session of its eighth annual convention here, recently went on record in favor of a "constructive Americanism," urged that a treaty of peace "should be placed in effect without further delay" and adopted a resolution opposing a cash bonus for soldiers, but favoring immediate provision for disabled or sick soldiers or their dependents.

Opposition to a cash bonus for soldiers originally had been drafted and approved by the Resolutions Committee in more comprehensive form, calling attention to alleged danger of certain classes of labor "abandoning work if granted a cash bonus, thus disorganizing business, causing further increase in prices of necessities and resulting in decreased production."

GIVES CREDIT THROUGH THE LAND

Backache, lame and stiff muscles and rheumatic pains are often symptoms of deranged kidneys. "I had weak bladder, bad kidneys and liver," writes Willie Carter, Luxar, Pa. "I could not sleep well and my back pained me awful. I had a dizzy feeling in the morning. Since taking Foley Kidney Pills I have been relieved of all such ailments." They rid the system of the poisonous acids that cause aches and pains.

Simpler Life

The Country Needs More Work And Less Play And Extravagance.

(Bardstown, Ky., Standard.) A simpler plan of living will help solve the difficult problems of today. Changed conditions have brought with them a spirit of restlessness and idleness. The country needs more work and less play.

The rise in prices generally have misled many into believing they are richer than they really are, and they are spending beyond their means. A check should be placed on all extravagance, and the people of ample means should practice economy to help production overtake consumption, and to set a worthy example.

The purpose of the overall agitation is right but this will result in injury if carried too far. Already the price of overalls is being increased to the hurt of the real working man who needs this kind of goods for hard usage. The purchasers of overalls should use them for the purpose designed, and if the overall clubs will add to their movement actual work they can help solve labor conditions. The new overall wearers should go to work and not talk too much.

The clothing manufacturers have no competition from foreign countries, owing to revolution and the impoverishments of war, and they have become arrogant in their charges. The farmers have the wool and cotton, they are consumers and are interested in reasonable and fair clothing prices. There is a larger class of labor in their country, that can make the plainer cotton and woolen goods, than can produce the broadcloths and silks and other fancy goods and new manufacturing plants could be established for the making of plainer cloths and clothing.

A movement to create universal sentiment for simpler life and both appropriate and plainer dress may be productive of very beneficial results.

Rheumatism Relief--25c.

Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets), Are Helping Thousands Who Tried Expensive Things Without Result. It's Guaranteed.

There are three vital processes of human existence—the digestion of food, the extraction of nourishment from it and the elimination of waste. Poor digestion and elimination means failure to derive full nourishment from food and that in turn often means impoverished blood, weakness, anemia, etc. Poor elimination means an accumulation of waste matter which poisons the body, lowers vitality, decreases the power of resistance to disease and leads to the development of many serious ills.

Rheumatism—due to some interference with the process of elimination, failure to get rid of certain body poisons—cannot be expected to yield to any medicine that fails to correct the condition responsible for it. Could any reasonable person expect to rid himself of rheumatic pain as long as rheumatic poison is allowed to remain in the body. Think of this. It explains the success of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) in so many cases where other medicines have failed. Thousands are using NR Tablets every day and getting relief. Why pay five or ten times as much for uncertain things? A 25c box of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets), containing enough to last twenty-five days—must help you. Must give you prompt relief and satisfactory benefit or cost you nothing. Nature's Remedy is not only for the relief of rheumatism. It improves digestion, tones the liver, regulates kidney and bowel action, improves the blood and cleanses the system. You've tried the expensive medicines and doctors, now make the real test. You'll get results this time. Just try it. Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) is sold, guaranteed and recommended by your druggist.

CAST ON THE WATERS

By MARIAN LEE

(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

"The bell is ringing, uncle."

"Let it ring. You don't get me out a night like this."

"But somebody wants to get across the river."

"Then let them swim."

"Shall I go?"

"You'll have to if you're so anxious about it."

With the maudlin and ungracious words Martin Dale turned over on the couch on which he lay and the girl, Alice, threw a waterproof cape over her shoulders and went out into the darkness and storm.

It was a relief to get away from the liquor freighted air of the room where she had sat poring over a book in the feeble lamp light. Reading and roaming amid nature comprised the only grateful break for Alice in an existence almost unendurable. There was not a possible girl companion within miles and the rickety, half-furnished old ruin of a building where Martin Dale had drunk and dozed half his life away had not a homelike feature. Left an orphan and penniless, her fate would have been the almshouse had not Dale, her half-uncle, adopted her.

Alice had become an expert in handling the ferryboat. It required both strength and skill to operate the great slotted wooden bar which pulled the boat along the thick rope cable, but she was able to exert both to a point of careful efficiency. She lit and set the lantern on the boat. It was raining hard and blowing a gale, but she was used to all kinds of weather, toil and discomfort.

Alice drove the scow ashore after crossing the river to find a man of about thirty pacing restlessly to and fro and who the moment the craft came within reach jumped aboard. He carried a basket quite roomy and covered with a piece of waterproof closely tucked in all about the edges. He placed this very carefully under the half boarded space under the seat at the stern, seemed very solicitous about it, but did not say himself.

"Hurry!" he spoke, nervously striding over the wet boards, "I shall pay you well if you do."

Alice bent sturdily to her task. She wondered who the handsome, well-dressed stranger could be, but her mind was practically absorbed by her duties, for never in all her experience had she faced a more severe task than the present one. The breeze had arisen to a hurricane and the current at times swept the bulky, clumsy craft to the extreme straining point of parting the cable.

"Snap!" It came as she had feared. The ancient knotted, mended rope had been unable to withstand the present fierce attack upon its rotted strands. With a shiver and then a series of dizzying whirls the scow swung out of all control.

"Hold to something!" she cried, herself clinging to an upright at the side of the craft. The lantern swung loose and was engulfed, and down stream the boat swung with those on board completely at the mercy of wind and water.

Then there was a crack. The craft had struck a rock, parted, floated on a shattered wreck and Alice, hurled into the waters, saw the passenger struggling in midstream. She grasped the basket as it floated near her and reached the shore in safety. She set it on the ground and ran along striving to discern some further trace of the passenger. Then, excited and awed, she hurried home, roused up Dale, and he, seizing a lantern, hastened away, his wrecked craft and the imperiled passenger in his mind.

He never returned and his body was later recovered at a dam down the river. And meantime Alice had made a startling discovery. In the basket she found a babe less than a year old and under it a wallet containing a large amount of bank notes. Concerning the child Alice told the entire true story. The finding of the money she did not relate. She adopted the little refugee with a new joy in life, using none of the money except for its needs, and operated a new small boat at the ferry alone.

Somehow to Alice, inexperienced as she was, the faith grew in her mind that some day developments concerning the missing passenger and her little protegee would come to light, and one day two months after that eventful night she returned from a stroll in the woods, the little one in her arms, to confront a man seated waiting for her outside the ferry house.

He was pale of face, attenuated of form and suggested a person just convalescent from a severe spell of illness. At once Alice recognized him as the ill-fated passenger of the ferryboat the night of the storm.

Robert Lisle related what Alice had anticipated—a marvelous rescue from drowning and weeks of sickness in a hospital. Then he had started back the trail to learn what had become of the little child of his dead sister whom he had removed from unfeeling relatives.

Alice wept at the thought of losing the little one whom she had come to love so dearly. An offer of money enough to make her independent was no balm for her grief. She begged to be allowed to go with little Mabel as her nurse. The heart of Robert Lisle was deeply touched and he could not part them. She went as nurse, indeed, but within a year the happy, obscure ferry girl became the honored wife of the man she had met so strangely.

THORNHILL WAGONS

BUILD a wagon of wood that grows rapidly and under easy conditions, and you have a wagon that cannot stand abusive wear. Nature when hurried shirks her work like man.

But build one—as Thornhills are built—of tough highland oak and hickory—that grows slowly upon the mountain side—that survives only after a ceaseless battle with soil and climate—then you have a wagon almost wearproof. The tough close-grained wood is endowed with double strength.

Let us show you the Thornhill wagons and explain the value of the Thornhill way.

Where Brains Don't Count.
One of the strangest things in this world is how difficult it is for an intellectual to change tires on a motor car.—Dallas News.

Gain Living From the Sea.
The Japanese are the only people who have ever undertaken the systematic planting and harvesting of seaweed and other marine vegetation.

True Happiness.
Happiness consists in the enjoyment of little pleasures, scattered along the common path of life, which, in the eager search for some great and exciting joy, we are apt to overlook.—Exchange.

Prairie Dogs.
The little ground squirrels, or prairie dogs of the western plains, have their homes 12 or 15 feet underground, with corridors and rooms. In some of these chambers the squirrel family lives, and in others food and various materials are stored.

Introduction of the Umbrella.
The umbrella was used in England as a luxurious sunshade early in the seventeenth century. Ben Jonson mentions it in a comedy produced in 1616. The eighteenth century had half elapsed before the umbrella had even begun to be used in England by both sexes as it is now.

Only in Maryland.
Imagine roasting a turkey, already as dry as tinder! Only in Maryland, where a few good cooks still linger, is it served properly. There they do not roast it, but boil it, and then serve it with a thick, creamy oyster sauce. The difference is like that between perfectly broiled tenderloin and fried chuck steak.—E. W. Howe's Monthly.

Dignified Protest.
It is told of an old negro servant of roguish propensities, as many a dandy is, that on one occasion he was unjustly reprimanded by his master for the disappearance of a certain article of value. His reply was: "Marse Andrew, I has enuff to answer fer wid the accusations what is jest, widout having to be sponshible for dem what aint so."

Famous Forest of Arden.
In the Forest of Arden, near London, England, the ancient custom is still observed of holding a May day procession, in which people from all the parishes surrounding the forest take part. The scripture is afterward read in the shade of one of the "gospel oaks," which are held sacred to this purpose. Little by little civilization is encroaching on the Forest of Arden. Railroads have cut through its trees, which are said once to have been so numerous that a squirrel could travel all over the forest without touching foot to the ground.

THAT BONUS BILL.

I left the office, at forty per week,
When Wilson called for men;
I was right in line for promotion, too,
With a raise of five or ten;
But I turned it down for thirty per month,
And was proud that I had the chance;
To fight for the flag we all revere,
And to strike a blow for France.

And I left a wife, and child behind,
When I sailed for overseas;
I made an allotment of fifteen per,
Which isn't so much you see,
But the government gave her another ten,
And then she worked by the day,
Ah, the women had hardships worse than ours,
When their loved ones marched away.

I served in the drive of the Marne campaign,
And down at St. Mihiel;
Was thirty days in the Argonne fight,
In that awful rain of steel;
We laid in the trenches night and day,
In the mud and driving rain;
And if my country needed men,
I'd do it all over again.

But now that I'm back after eighteen months,
The place that I held is filled;
So I'm compelled to join the ranks,
In the labor you call unskilled;
While the fellows who didn't enlist at all,
But got rich at a shell proof job,
Are fighting now against the Bonus Bill,
For the soldier, marine and gob.

We'll spend a million bucks, perhaps,
To see Jack Dempsey fight;
He's a man who shirked at his country's call,
When our cause was just and right;
But we haven't the coin to spend on the lads,
Who carried our flag to fame;
Two years ago they were heroes, all,
And now they are only a name.

You can preach economy day and night,
And rave like a man insane,
Against the bonus for service men,
But they'll get it just the same.
Four million voters, thinking as one,
Can make this dream come true;
So let's get together and help the boys—
Remember it's up to you.

HAPPY WOMAN REALIZES HER MISTAKE NOW.

"I Would be about $100
Better Off If I'd Have Taken Trutona
First",

MRS. BROWN'S STATEMENT.

Louisville, Ky. May 5th.—"I realize now that I'd be about one hundred dollars better off if I'd taken Trutona first, instead of trying the numerous medicines I did without getting results." Mrs. Brown 662 South Twenty-third Street, Louisville, told the Trutona Representative recently.

"I had indigestion, Mrs. Brown said in describing her troubles." It seemed there was nothing I could eat that would agree with me. The indigestion caused me to be annoyed with dizziness. If I would stoop over I felt like I was going to fall and if I walked up stairs I'd be annoyed by black spots forming before my eyes."

"So many people spoke highly of Trutona in the papers that I decided to try it. Many of them had suffered from troubles like mine, too. I had tried medicine after medicine without results and had gotten fairly disgusted, I'll tell you. But Trutona has entirely relieved all of my troubles and I can truthfully say now, that I feel better than I have for years."

Mrs. Brown's statement should prove of the deepest interest to every one who is suffering from stomach, liver and bowel troubles. That Trutona completely relieved her troubles after other medicines failed, has been definitely stated and if Trutona will do that for one person—as a matter of fact, the Perfect Tonic has done it for thousands—it will certainly do the same for you!

Trutona is sold in Lancaster at McRoberts Drug Store.—Advertisement.

BILL STRIKES AT PAPER FAMINE

Barkley Proposes U. S.
Purchase of Newsprint for Resale to Publishers.

FAIR DISTRIBUTION IS AIM.

WASHINGTON.—Relief for the smaller newspapers throughout the country, which are unable to obtain newsprint because of the acute paper shortage situation, is planned in legislation introduced in the House Saturday by Representative Alben W. Barkley, First Kentucky district.

The Kentuckian introduced a bill to amend the War Finance Corporation Act, by authorizing the War Finance Corporation "To Purchase newsprint and resell same to publishers of newspapers in order to obtain more equitable and economic distribution of newsprint paper."

The amendment offered by Mr. Barkley appropriates a revolving fund of $2,000,000 to be used by the War Finance Corporation in purchasing newsprint paper from manufacturers in the United States and elsewhere in "sufficient amounts and quantities to insure fair and equitable distribution."

It provides that the paper shall be sold to American newspapers at prices not exceeding cost of paper to the corporation plus a reasonable amount to reimburse it for actual expenses incident to the conduct of the transaction. The bill says:

"Such sales by the corporation to individual publishers shall be in such quantities as will meet their reasonable requirements as nearly as may be practicable, and on such terms and subject to such regulations as the corporation shall establish."

"In making such sales of paper to publishers, preference shall be given to such as are unable to obtain contracts with manufacturers or others for a supply of paper at reasonable prices."

AN INVOLUN- TARY BATH

By ALDEN CHAPMAN

(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

"You had better get home now, Walt," spoke Robert Bryce, suspending operations on the barrel upon which he was putting the finishing touches as an expert of the cooperage art.

"What for? I'm afraid!" came a voice from anywhere, nowhere, certainly not emanating from any person in view.

"Well, Dan Milton has just gone down the road and he's got a stick with him. Now, Walt, you follow my advice and sneak home. Get into the house as quick as you can, and maybe he'll forget to hunt you up and all about your breaking that jug today."

"Not him!" scoffed the same mysterious voice, and then its owner protruded a head, and then a pair of thin, ragged shoulders into view from the depths of a barrel standing at one end of the old cooper's work bench. "Say, I can't stand it no longer, being half starved and lammed for nothing and treated like a dog! I'm going to run away from home, I am!"

"Don't you do it, son," counseled Robert Bryce, seriously. "It never pays. Stay and fight it out. You're nothing but a homeless orphan boy buffeted about at everybody's will, but such have come to the top as great, good men in my knowing."

"Why don't you get me away from Dan Milton and make a cooper of me?" suggested Walt earnestly. "If I am nobody's boy, you can get me, can't you? You like me, and so does Miss Rosy, and so does Ned Townsend, and I'd die for any one, or all three of you together, if it had to be."

"What has Ned Townsend got to do with it?" demanded the old cooper, pricking up his ears.

"He—oh, well, he's Rosy's fellow, or hopes to be, and wants to be. Don't you like him, Mr. Bryce?"

"Like him well enough," growled out the old cooper, "but he's poor as we are, and I'm not going to let Rosy join her life with a fellow who can't give her better than she's got. Now, you run home. It's your chance."

But it was not Walt's chance. He crawled from the barrel and made a dash across lots only to run squarely across the path of big, wicked faced Dan Milton, who had doubled on his tracks, it seemed.

"Hi! You come here," yelled Dan. "I've a rod in pickle for you."

Walt uttered a weak, terrified wail. Then he formed a sudden resolution. His little limbs increased vivid action. It was getting on towards dusk. A clear stretch spread out before him. Beyond that was rising ground and struggling timber, further on yet the wilderness of derricks and tanks marking the oil fields active and experimental. There were a thousand places where he could hide.

Dan Milton pursued, kept up half a mile chase, then halted, irate and breathless, to shake his club menacingly at the refugee, who dove into a swampy stretch of brush, rock and timber and was lost in its depths. There was a splash, a cry, less of pain than disgust. Past some sheltering vines Walt plunged, to land up to the neck into a snail, but deep pool. His feet touched bottom, but a heavy, sticky substance overcoated him completely. It was with difficulty that Walt waded, climbed and crawled out of his predicament. Even then he staggered as he walked. The substance adhering to him seemed heavy as lead. The oily odor emanating from it was more nauseous than pungent.

"And now I'm in a fix!" he dolefully meditated. "I've spoiled my clothes and I'd be about skinned alive if I went home this way. Oh! it's got far and fast away from Alton for me," and Walt turned his face away from the town, feeling that it would never do to return. Half a mile laboriously covered, Walt halted, and his longing glance was fixed on a light in a little clean cabin he knew well.

"I shouldn't wonder if Ned Townsend would house me till I get these clothes scraped off and rested a bit," mused Walt, and hopefully trudged over to the shack where his friend lived. Ned was foreman of a well-boring crew. He smiled a pleasant welcome as Walt crossed the threshold of his humble domicile. Then he stared at him almost in stupefaction. Then he came closer and sniffed, and then ran his hand across the glistening stuff that coated Walt as if he were a mailed knight and examined it closely.

Meantime Walt stumbingly told his story. There was a vivid token of interest in his auditor's eyes.

"Say, lad," he spoke, and there was a trace of keen excitement in his tones, "can you lead me to where you fell into that pool of oil?"

"I sure can," assented Walt, and did. And then, more roused up than ever, Ned took him back to the cabin. A better meal and a more comfortable couch Walt had never enjoyed, and, seeing his young guest comfortably settled, Ned Townsend scurried from the house, and far into the night was engrossed in examining the oil and pool and seeking out and negotiating with the owners of the property around it, securing options upon it for a mere song.

The next day Ned Townsend for a small sum secured the consent of Dan Milton to adopt Walt. The next it was known that the hidden pool was the outlet of a gusher far down in the bowels of the earth and Ned was a wealthy man.

Then pretty, willing Rosy Bryce came into the lives of Ned and Walt as a devoted wife and a loving adopted mother.

IN CONSTANT USE BY PHYSICIANS EVERY DAY

Medicinal Value of S. S. S. is Fully Recognized.

Almost every human ailment can be traced, one way or another, to impurities in the blood. So you cannot overestimate the importance of keeping your circulation built up, so that your heart will be constantly pumping rich, red, life-giving blood to all parts of the system. Any slight disorder or impurity that creeps into the blood is a source of danger, for every vital organ of the body depends upon the blood supply to properly perform its functions. It is quite true that practically every one is equally exposed to the attacks of disease. You are just as liable to be attacked as the man or woman sitting next to you on the street car. It all depends upon the condition of your blood. If it is thin and impoverished, and has been allowed to reach a low state by the accumulation of impurities, you have not sufficient vitality to resist these germ attacks, and they find a fertile field in your system to spread disease.

Over a hundred years ago the Indians made many excellent remedies and tonic from roots and herbs gathered from the forests. One of these formulas was handed down to the white man and for more than fifty years has been used as S. S. S., which is recognized as the best known blood medicine on the market.

This fine old remedy is still made as of old from roots and herbs of proven medicinal value. In fact, physicians everywhere recognize the wonderful efficiency of these roots, and they are prescribed in some form or other almost daily.

And now after being in constant use for more than half a century, S. S. S. is more popular than ever. It is sold by practically every drug store in the land, and every druggist is well acquainted with its sterling merit, for they have seen its results.

S. S. S. is a very valuable agent in the treatment of Catarrh, Rheumatism, Eczema, Tetter boils, pimples, skin eruptions, malaria, and other disorders that come from blood impurities.

It is also without an equal as a general tonic and system builder. By its efficacy in cleansing the blood of impurities, it builds up the appetite and gives new life and vigor to the entire body.

FROM THE DEPTHS

By OTILLIA F. PFEIFFER

(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

That familiar bad penny and conventional rolling stone, Morton Dale, had come back to Grafton after a mysterious absence of a year or more. He had been remembered as an idle, dissipated fellow, good-natured, willing and accommodating, but prone to fall by the wayside.

He had gone away ragged and shiftless looking. He had returned seemingly not much bettered as to personal appearance.

"Somehow his face is different," observed an old gossip. "His hand is steady and his eye clear as crystal. He don't exactly look prosperous, but there's something new about him."

"Why, yes," explained a bystander, "he says he hasn't touched a drop since he left here."

The town marshal and Judge Allen, decorous and severe, shook their wise heads, but the more humble old friends of Dale, recalling his many helpful acts of kindness, were responsive and charitable. Dale, coming into town on foot, was hailed by Tom Travis, teamster, with a hearty: "Hi there! Come back to wake up the old dead town?"

"Hardly," smiled Dale. "Just got homesick and had to see my old friends once more, if I have any."

"I'm one!" returned Travis, eyeing the shabby garments. "You look a little more like a man, but I don't see you wearing any diamonds, hey? You must be tired, so hop up here and I'll give you a lift. And hungry? I can spare you a dollar, if you're clear out of funds."

"Thank you, Tom," said Dale with humid eyes. "You always were a good sort, but I've still got a little change. Just drop me at Miller's, the shoe-maker—an old chum, you know."

"He'll be glad," assured Travis heartily, and Miller was, and Dale's face beamed with pleasure at the greeting he received.

"I see one of your shoes is out at the toe," observed Miller. "Off with it and let me make you trim and right, and I'll put in an hour or two with you grubbing up, if you like, when I get my work done."

"I may come back later," advised Dale. "Sort of longing to see some more of my old friends."

"Ted Norris is working in the general store next door," said Miller. "He never gets tired telling how you ran a race against time for the doctor, saving his boy's life when he was bleeding to death from that cut on a sharp scythe."

And, indeed, Ted Norris declared that Dale must accompany him home that afternoon and stay to tea and all night, and took out his pocket-book, but halted a spontaneous impulse of generosity and good fellowship as he too noticed that "something new" in Morton Dale's face that somehow checked old-time familiarity.

So it was soon all over town that the wanderer had returned and, too, was "straight as a string," and however unpromising he presented as to worldly goods, had a certain striking soulfulness in his face that caused the many old friends he met to ponder and wonder.

"How are the Rowlands getting along?" asked Dale from an old chum, late in the afternoon.

"Same as usual," was the response. "The old man is still able to work, and Dorothy's just as good and pretty as ever. Sort of fascinated in that quarter once, wasn't you, Dale?"

"More than that," replied Dale with serious candor. "Dear little Dorothy! I told her I'd never come back until I drank a dead letter, and I haven't, and it is. I wonder if she'll care to see me."

"She's home from district school teaching this week, I hear. Guess she isn't the girl to forget a fellow she seemed to like as she did you."

"Thank you," spoke Dale in a low, intense tone. "I need encouragement when the great hopes of my life are in the balance."

The sun was just going down as Morton Dale neared the humble cottage of the Rowlands. He paused. Framed in the glowing radiance, standing at the gate was a golden-haired, sweet-faced girl. She saw him coming, ran towards him and clasped both of his hands.

"Oh, Morton!" she fluttered. "I heard about it. Is it true? But oh! I do not need to ask. Your face tells the story. What a happy hour it would be for your dear, dead mother, were she here to see you—redeemed."

"You are always saying good, lovely words," choked up Dale. "Are you that glad?"

"So glad, Morton," said Dorothy, trembling with emotion, "that I would go hand in hand with you to the ends of the world, poor, homeless, but happy knowing that you had found your soul at last."

Morton Dale uttered a great surging cry of joy of bliss complete.

"Oh! the blessing of friends so many, so true to me," he uttered "for I have tried them out. And these old clothes and my seeming poverty only drew them the closer to me. Come, all of them, and you, most of all, my heart's true darling, and share with me—this!"

And with pride and gladness, the same old generous hearted, impulsive spirit nature had made him, Morton Dale revealed a document naming him joint heir with a cousin to the estate of a relative which made him independent.

KENTUCKY NEGRO Has Dreamer's Fishing Rod.

WASHINGTON—There are inventions and inventions and still more inventions designed to lure the finny tribe from the waters, but it took Uncle Eph Johnson, aged negro, native of Scott County, Kentucky, to bring forth the invention that reduces to the minimum the labors of the fisherman.

Uncle Eph's invention allows the disciple of Izaak Walton to cast his line into the water and lie down to piscatorial dreams with the firm conviction that when the fish bites he will be awakened from his slumbers in time to land his catch.

'Tis simple, this invention of Uncle Eph's. It is not patented. On the contrary, its inventor offers it to any and all devotees of the rod and reel.

Stick an umbrella rib perpendicularly in the mud on the bank, fasten a sleigh bell near the top and connect the line with this "invention" and you are ready to fish—and sleep.

"It ain't nothin' more'n a labor saver," said Uncle Eph. "You see, every time I get a bite the fish bends the umbrella rib and the bell rings. Den I wakes up an' hauls him in."

The aged negro, who years ago, courted the finny tribe in Elkhorn Creek, is spending the remaining years of his life teaching his grandson to fish in the Potomac.

Congress

Should Make Thorough Investigation Of Cost And Sale Prices.

(Bardstown, Ky., Standard.) Congress should investigate thoroughly the cost of production of the various manufactured articles and of food and fuel, as well as their sale prices.

The prices of newspaper paper, shoes and other clothing, sugar and potatoes deserve special investigation.

The raw materials produced by the farmer and used in the manufacture of clothing cost five to ten per cent of the present sale prices, and the public should know who is getting the other ninety to ninety-five per cent in order to intelligently seek the remedy. No man can play ball batting the dark. The guilty parties should be singled out and the right remedy applied. Congress can summon witnesses, put them on oath and demand the books and records containing the necessary information.

The correct and just rule to follow always is "Cost of Production Plus a Fair Profit," and this rule should be applied throughout the nation. There is a disposition in some quarters to be hogish and get all you can by might and without right. Apply the same rule of cost plus a fair profit to everybody. The general prices of products and of labor should not be disturbed, all prices below the general level should be increased in proportion to other things, and the profiteer, receiving more than cost of production plus a fair profit, should be sought out and his unfair profit reduced by law, economy and by every other fair method that will accomplish the results desired.

No Longer 'Milch' Cow

Hereafter it will be "milk cow" and not "milch cow"—at least so far as the Department of Agriculture is concerned.

This decision marks the termination of a controversy in which etymologists in the department have had not a little interest. Those defending "milch" have pointed to scriptural use and certain of the classics as establishing precedents, while the opposition has contended that dairymen, ranchmen and farmers in general use "milk" instead of "milch" almost universally.

The advocates of "milk" also favored that word because they contended it was more strictly an English word, while "milch" was akin to German. Since Americanization of language as well as ideals is an article in every patriot's creed, it is thought that this last sally of the "milch" defenders helped as much as any to decide the question in their favor.

DEMONSTRATION WORK IS MADE PROFITABLE

Science Applied to Practical Agriculture in Idaho.

Report Recently Given Out Shows Saving of $10.27 for Every Dollar Expended—Variety of Subjects Treated.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Impressive results from the application of science to practical agriculture are shown in a report recently given to the county commissioners of Idaho regarding the extension work in that state for 1919. A saving of $10.27 for every dollar expended in the extension activities was made. The total expenditure was $274,500, including the amounts the counties provided from their own funds and the money received from state and federal sources. The savings resulting directly from this outlay were figured at $2,820,217.

In all more than 2,100 demonstrations were held during the year and were attended by more than 22,000 persons. In calculating the savings indicated above only the increases resulting directly from these demonstrations are included, no account being taken of the large benefits arising from the spread of information to farmers not sharing in the demonstrations.

The great variety of subjects treated by the agricultural experts is shown by the following items selected from a summary of their work: Demonstrations relating to seed testing, corn for silage, control of smut in wheat and in oats, potato variety demonstrations, alfalfa variety demonstrations, orchard spraying, cow testing, control of rodents, co-operative purchasing and marketing, poultry culling, eradication of hog cholera, drainage and irrigation demonstrations, use of fertilizer and feeding of live stock.

The pruning and training of grape vines is not a difficult operation, although it too often is so considered by the inexperienced. Many Farmers Would Be Justified in Rearranging Fields and Clearing Away Obstacles.

A farm, of large size with irregular outline, or one badly cut up by ditches or needless fencing, is operating under a handicap. The increased ease of working, and the reduction of the cost of working, would justify much labor and expense on many farms in the rearrangement of fields and in clearing away obstructions.

Now that woman has been given the right to vote in many states, mere man is confronted with the problem of inducing her to vote.

Here are two important extremes of life. A good reputation is hard to make and easy to lose, while a bad one is easy to make and hard to lose.

Man is the equal of woman in all things except wherein he is not her equal. And that, surely, is diplomatic enough to prevent even our wife from taking offense.

Many a man in this country longs for the day when all wars will be a thing of the past. Then he can slip home in the early hours of the morning without removing his shoes at the door.

COULD HARDLY STAND ALONE

Terrible Suffering From Headache, Sideache, Backache, and Weakness, Relieved by Cardui, Says This Texas Lady.

Gonzales, Tex.—Mrs. Minnie Philpot, of this place, writes: "Five years ago I was taken with a pain in my left side. It would commence with an aching and extend up into my left shoulder and on down into my back. By that time the pain would be so severe I would have to take to bed, and suffered usually about three days. I suffered this way for three years, and got to be a mere skeleton and was so weak I could hardly stand alone. Was not able to go anywhere and had to let my house work go. I suffered awful with a pain in my back and I had the headache all the time. I just was unable to do a thing. My life was a misery, my stomach got in an awful condition, caused from taking so much medicine. I suffered so much pain. I had just about given up all hopes of our getting anything to help me.

One day a Birthday Almanac was thrown in my yard. After reading its testimonials I decided to try Cardui, and am so thankful that I did, for I began to improve when on the second bottle. I am now a well woman and feeling fine and the cure has been permanent for it has been two years since my awful bad health. I will always praise and recommend Cardui." Try Cardui today.

Tested Eighteen Months to Prove Perfection

TWO years ago a puncture-proof cord tire was unheard of. The public clamored for it; all tire makers tried to build it.

Lee was making the only successful puncture-proof pneumatic fabric tire. Motorists naturally looked to Lee for a puncture-proof cord.

Lee has succeeded in building such a tire. It has all the economy and resiliency of the best cord tires. It practically eliminates blowouts, tread separation, broken sidewalls and other common tire troubles. And it is positively puncture-proof.

For 18 months this tire was cruelly tested before being offered to the public. It rode as lightly and as smoothly as a cord without the puncture-proof feature. It was as economical on fuel and oil. It was easier on tubes. And—it outlasted cord tires that were not puncture-proof!

Let us demonstrate the economy of the new Lee Cord Puncture-Proof.

LARGER CLOVER CROP IS URGED

High Prices Should Serve as Additional Reason for Planting Seed With Care.

PREPARE GROUND PROPERLY

Of Utmost Importance to Provide Seed Bed Which is Firm, Moist and Fine—Sowing With Drill Assures Good Stand.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The great hindrance to an extensive planting of clover this year is the price of the seed, which has advanced to the unprecedented figure of 60 cents a pound wholesale for the best grade. High prices, however, should not stop the planting of clover and the return to proved rotations, but should serve simply as an additional reason for sowing the seed with the greatest care, according to the United States department of agriculture specialists.

Plant the Seed Right.

Clover should not be planted at all unless it is planted right. Scattering expensive clover seed on poorly prepared ground is the poorest economy. The crop should be provided with a seed bed which is firm, moist, and fine, and the quality of the seed should be of the best. If the land is "sour" it should be limed for red and sweet clover.

Probably the most certain way to obtain a stand of clover is to sow it with a drill alone, on especially prepared ground. Special clover or alfalfa drills are now available and when a sufficient acreage is being grown to justify their purchase the use of these implements is to be recommended. On smaller areas a regular grain drill can be used if provided with spouts leading from the grass seed-box back of the shoes or disks. On most soils, a better covering of the seed is obtained if the drill is equipped with chain seed covers, as these leave a flat furrow. Unless the soil is in a mellow condition a shallow seed bed must be prepared for the drill.

When a drill is not available the seed can be scattered with a rotary seeder, a wheel barrow seeder, or by hand. The ground, however, must be in fine mellow condition, which means that seeding must be delayed until the soil can be stirred once or twice with a spike-tooth harrow. When seeded in this way the seed must be covered, usually with a spike-tooth harrow, but sometimes with a heavy brush drag. One-half inch in clay soils and an inch in lighter soils is about the proper depth of planting.

Clover Seed Is Easily Tested.

First-quality clover seed from a reliable seedsmen can usually be depended upon to possess good germination and be free from weed seeds. However, if there is any doubt as to the quality of the seed it can easily be tested for germination in the same way that corn is tested, by counting out 100 seeds and placing them in a sand or rag 'doll' germinator for a week. The number of seeds which germinate in that time is the percentage of germination of the lot. The percentage of weed seeds is harder to detect, as many weed seeds resemble the clover seed in appearance. However, with the use of a magnifying glass the majority of the weed seeds can easily be seen. The percentage of weed seeds can be roughly determined by taking 100 seeds just as they come and counting out the weed seeds. Not all foreign seeds in clover are harmful but the farmer paying for clover seed should get it.

Home-Grown Seed Is Best.

During the past 12 months large quantities of Italian-grown red clover seed have been imported into this country. Tests have shown that seed grown in Italy produces plants which are less hardy and more subject to disease than plants from American-

ANOTHER ARKANSAS TOWN

Where Simplified Dress Is A Success.

Superintendent H. H. Hill, of the Walnut Ridge Public Schools
Tries Out Searcy Plan and Finds It Works Better Than He Expected.

Thrift and Saving, clad in simplified dress, are making strides in Arkansas, and the story about how Searcy, Arkansas, had adopted the convenient and money saving garb, and printed in the Savings Herald a few months ago, is bearing fresh fruit all the time.

No town in the entire Eighth Federal Reserve District has made a better record in this direction than has Walnut Ridge, and the statistics issued by the Savings Division of the Treasury Department shows that the money saved in dress is not all spent for frivolity, but the assets of the savers is being increased by plentiful purchase of Government Savings Stamps and Treasury Savings Certificates, and the Liberty Bond purchasers of that part of the state are holding on to their bonds.

H. H. Hill is superintendent of the public school of Walnut Ridge, and if there be an enthusiastic endorser of the Searcy Plan Mr. Hill is that man. He not only urges the boy pupils to wear overalls but he sets an example himself and he finds it profitable.

In a letter to the Treasury Department last month Mr. Hill gave his own experience, and it cannot be told in better language than he uses himself. Here is what superintendent Hill says:

"We have three teachers, including myself, wearing overalls. From my own personal experience, I can report complete satisfaction. I have worn overalls more than two months, using that style that comes up to the shoulders both before and behind, wearing with the overalls an old coat, the pants to which were long ago worn out.

"I have not found it necessary to wear trousers underneath the overalls, although some of the boys have done this, utilizing some old pair with the seat worn out or such like. This is done to gain added warmth.

"I bought two pairs of overalls at the start, which cost $3.50 per garment, or $7 for the entire investment. For this price I obtained extra quality. The overalls have not faded perceptibly and haven't shrunk much. During the two months I have worn them it has not been necessary to have any pressing or cleaning done, for the simple reason that I have worn regular suits or "store clothes" only on Saturdays (sometimes) and on Sundays occasionally, and a few times at night during the week.

"After wearing a suit it is a simple matter to hang it up carefully and if it loses any of the creases at all it will be nicely creased the next time it is brought forth. During the spring I shall save at least the price of a good suit or about $75. In addition to this I have saved laundry bills, for we generally wear wool shirts with collars attached.

"Furthermore," when wearing overalls, one does not wear $15 silk shirts, $4 knit ties, and $20 shoes. If a person desires such things he may always keep one outfit ready to wear.

"And what I did not hope for at first, one rapidly becomes accustomed to the overalls and feel much freer and easier at all times. Besides, it puts him in touch with a greater number of his constituents.

I have saved enough and more in two months to pay for the overalls on my pressing bill alone."

The school system of which Mr. Hill is the head publishes a very creditable little school paper, in the March number of which appears a readable account of the simplified dress reform. The paper rejoices in the euphonious name of "The Bobcat."

Non-Profitteering

Organizations Should Concentrate Efforts Against Profitteering.

(Bardstown, Ky., Standard.)

There is no reason why all non-profitteers should not consolidate and concentrate their efforts against profitteering. The work of this nature is greater than at first appears. Profitteering is being engaged in by many manufacturing concerns as well as middle men. Nor should the farmer be unmindful of that class of profiteers, who are buying up and hoarding farm products and selling them out at fabulous prices in certain localities to the injury of the people and regardless of the price paid the producer; this dishonest species of business by certain middlemen is being unjustly charged to the farmers, causing many to believe the farmer is profitteering when he scarcely made expenses on his sale of these products. This abuse should be prohibited by rigid laws.

The newspapers in the purchase of their supplies, and laboring men in the purchase of shoes and much other clothing are suffering the yoke of the profiteer and should make common cause with the Farm Bureau people against a common enemy.

The present general level of prices of farm products should be maintained and things unduly low should be brought to the same level; unnecessary middlemen should be eliminated, and the death knell should be sounded to unfair speculation and all profitteering.

The newspapers, farm bureaus and similar organizations should arrange a closer cooperation for mutual protection against the injuries and perils that beset them.

U. S. may Handle Sugar In War on Exorbitant Prices

Important action by the government effecting both the supply and price of sugar is expected to follow an important conference begun in the office of Attorney General Palmer in the Department of Justice. In attendance on the conference were several United States district attorneys and other government agents who for some time have been investigating sugar supplies and prices in their territory. No information concerning the conference was given out in advance, but it was stated that an announcement was expected at its conclusion. Among the solutions of the sugar problem understood to be up for consideration were steps to prevent sugar hoarding, high prices and a suggestion that the government itself take over and handle all sugar. It has been the contention of government officials for some time that there was an adequate supply of sugar in the country and little excuse for sugar shortages and present prices.

Ten miles used to be a long way

WHAT a difference in these motor-car days, when every point in the county is hardly more than "just around the corner."

People's ideas are changing, too.

They're beginning to figure out how much it is costing them to keep a car. And the man who is doing the greatest amount of figuring is the man with the moderate-price car.

There still seems to be a notion in some quarters that any tire is good enough for a small car.

That's not what the man who owns it thinks.

In recommending and selling U. S. Tires we are trying to see his side of the proposition—finding out what he wants in a tire and giving him that.

Large or small, U. S. Tires are built to only one standard of quality—the standard that produced the first straight side automobile tire, the first pneumatic truck tire.

Every tire that bears the name "U. S." is built the best way its makers know how. It isn't the car, but the man who owns the car, that counts with the oldest and largest rubber concern in the world.

As representatives of U. S. Tires in this town, we offer you the benefit of our experience and advice in settling your tire problem.

Select your tires according to the roads they have to travel:

In sandy or hilly country, wherever the going is apt to be heavy—The U. S. Nobby.

For ordinary country roads—The U. S. Chain or Usco.

For front wheels—The U. S. Plain.

For best results—everywhere—U. S. Royal Cord.
